"THERE AIN'T NO SUCH HOUSE"

Last week the editor of this paper stopped his car in front of a local filling station. While it was being serviced a Michigan car drove up and one of the occupants inquired as to the whereabouts of "The McLean House." A by-tander, not connected with the station, at once answered the inquiry with "There ain't no such house around here!"

The car was about to drive away, but the writer managed to reach it in time and told the tourists what he knew of what happened at Appomattox in April, 1865. Whereupon, they turned around to visit all the scenes at the old Surrender Grounds.

We call this typical experience to mind because we are sure that failure to develop the historical asset of this town cost us thousands of dollars every tourist season.

We loudly lament the failure of state and national governments to spend large sums of money building monuments, etc., here, but at the same time WE OURSELVES fail to utilize what we already have.

On another page of today's paper we have written a little quiz on facts we all should be able to tell tourists. May we be so bold as to urge that this information be studied and used this tourist's season.

SHUDDERING BEFORE THE GREAT

The people have always shuddered with fear as they stood in the house of the great. When France's proletariat swarmed into Versailles to start the French Revolution, they paused to shudder in the actual presence of the grandeur of the great. Every revolution the world has known has witnessed the same scene. There is something about success, power and greatness that inspires awe.

With the greatness and power of the HOUSE of MORGAN being revealed by congressional investigation in Washington, many of our citizens stand in awe. As J. P. Morgan and his partners speak casually of hundreds of millions of dollars, almost as pocket change—our mouths pop open. The very staggering power of the Morgan's amazes us.

Carter Glass must feel something of that awe. He has challenged the progress of the investigation ever since it began. Glass is wise enough to foresee that Morgan's amazing power over the finances of the nation carries with it ability to wreck and destroy as well as to aid and construct. If pushed to exercise his power, Morgan can wreck a big percentage of the nation's business. Glass sees this and hesitates to rile that power.

This paper has no facts to give it authority to say that Morgan has violated laws or accumulated power and billions illegally. This paper can only point out the issue, which we see to be this: Billions of dollars of money was sapped out of the run of the American investor and staggering profits piled mountain high in the vaults of a few. We have the choice of seeking to break up that vested interest and having battle with gigantic capitalism, or else we must surrender the nation, stock and barrel, to their control. The choice must be made wisely, because Morgan is an emperor with millions and millions of GOLD SOLDIERS at his command. The adversary is entrenched and fortified.

Patrick Henry once declared: When shall we be stronger for the battle? When the enemy has overrun our homes and stationed guards at every fireside? When all of our resources have been confiscated and abused? No—we are not weak, etc. ending with the immortal phrase—"I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death."

The writer stands in AWE before the greatness and power of J. P. Morgan and his partners. But deep down in him there swells up a surge of emotion that cries "UNFAIR—UNJUST—UNHOLY" before the continued grinding of our people between the upper and nether millstones of speculative orgy and capitalistic greed. Sooner or later DEMOCRACY will once show itself on this continent.

The Letter Box

Dear Editor:

Please insert the following in the Times-Virginian if you have space:

We, the members of the "Phelps' String Band," wish to express our thanks to the town of Appomattox and the leaders of the contest for having such an enjoyable event. We appreciate the interest taken by the business men of Appomattox also. We thank the judge and the 'Rexall store' for our award and we won't forget you in time to come. Last but not least, we thank the audience.

We consider the 'Musical' the biggest event in Appomattox with one exception, which was year before last, when the "United Confederate Veterans captured Appomattox."

We, the musicians of Southern Buckingham, Eastern corner of Appomattox, hope there can be another music contest, better than ever next time.

'Phelps' String Band.

CLINICS PLANNED FOR PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN IN APPOMATTOX CO.

Each year many children who enter school for the first time have physical defects and have not been vaccinated.

Many of these defects could have been prevented, and practically all of them can be corrected.

After careful study and experience in many places, it has been found an excellent plan to have these children examined early in the summer and have necessary corrections made before the schools open in September, and to also have them vaccinated against smallpox and diphtheria. Parents are urged to have this done by their family physician or at the scheduled clinic at the Courthouse from 9-12 A. M., on Monday, June 5th and June 19th, and at Pamplin high school from 2-4 P. M. on the same dates. Examinations at these clinics will be free, and the cost of vaccination is 15 cents.

These clinics will not be held after these dates, as the Southside Health Unit will be discontinued on July 1st.

W. A. Brumfield, M. D. Director, Southside Health Dis.

To Meet In Virginia

(By Carter Wormeley)

Richmond, May 27.—The Sixteenth International Geological Congress will meet July 22-29, in Washington, D. C. The Congress is composed of official delegates from all nations and registrants who are interested in any phase of geology.

In addition to the sessions for the reading of papers, numerous excursions are planned to areas of unusual interest on account of the geology or mineral deposits. Five of these excursions will be to parts of Virginia.

One group will spend a week before the Congress in traveling the Valley from Winchester to Cumberland Gap, Bristol, and return to Washington. The typical formations and structure of this part of the Appalachian region will be examined in some detail. Many of the large folds and faults which are well displayed have been of great interest since the classic studies of Prof. W. B. Rogers, first State Geologist, from 1835 to 1842. The new geologic map of the Appalachian Valley in Virginia by Dr. Charles Butts, of the United States Geological Survey, prepared in cooperation with the Virginia Geological Survey will be used as one of the guides on this trip.

Another group will visit the Chesapeake Bay region between Washington and Norfolk, before the sessions of the Congress. Six days will be spent in studying the notable exposures of fossil-bearing rocks at Quantico, Aquia Creek, and Yorktown. Dismal Swamp will be included on the excursion. The world-famous shell beds in the Yorktown cliffs have recently been described by Professor J. A. Roberts, of the University of Virginia, in Bulletin 37 of the Virginia Geological Survey.

During the Congress, three one-day excursions will be made to Virginia. Geologists interested primarily in economic geology will visit the largest commercial soapstone operations in the world at Schuyler, through the courtesy of the Virginia Alberene Corporation. The largest deposits of titanium mineral known in North America will be examined in Nelson County, at Roseland, through the courtesy of the American Rutile Company, and at Piney River, through the courtesy of the Southern Mineral Products Corporation, from Washington via Sperryville and Stanardsville to Charlottesville. The members will study the principal physical features of the northern Piedmont and Blue Ridge provinces, including the Shenandoah National Park area. A feature of special interest is the origin of the extensive flattish surface of the Piedmont, which bevels diverse and highly folded rocks.

The fifth party will motor from Charlottesville to Lynchburg and return in order to study a typical cross-section of the Appalachian region. This itinerary affords striking examples of the thick marine formations which lie west of the Blue Ridge and of the great folds and faults which occur in them. It gives also a fine view of the Shenandoah Valley and adjacent regions.

All-day excursions will return to Charlottesville to visit Monticello and the University of Virginia. This group of excursions is in charge of a local committee composed of Prof. W. A. Nelson and Prof. J. K. Roberts, of the University School of Geology, Mr. W. M. McGill, Assistant State Geologist, and Dr. Arthur Bevan, State Geologist, State Commission on Conservation and Development, Chairman.

Hospital Party

Attracting wide attention and interest the Baby Home-Coming Day held at the Virginia Baptist Hospital, May 23 was largely attended and declared a great success. The first child born in the hospital, July 15, 1924,) came all the way from its home in Bristol, Tenn., to attend the birthday party. 257 children born in the institution registered, and this was not all. Parents and friends swelled the crowd to about 1,000, coming from many sections as well as from the city.

The exercises were held on the beautiful and spacious lawn of the hospital where colors, platform, refreshment tables and audience had been provided. Games were played and many favors given the children. Ice-cream, punch and wafers were served. Gifts were made to the first-born boy, the first-born girl, the first-born twins, the last baby in the hospital, less than 24 hours old was present in a basket to receive his gift. The mother to whom the hospital stork had presented four babies also received a congratulation. The exercises were under the direction of Mr. T. W. Gillham, vice-president of the Board of Trustees and the president, Mr. O. B. Barker, made a welcoming address. The feature of the day was the taking of a photograph of the children assembled on the front steps of the hospital, the crowd dispersed after expressing great delight on the occasion.

Build Up Health and Pains Go Away

WOMEN who suffer from weakness often have many aches and pains which a thorough tonic will help. Those who suffer from this condition should find Cardui, a purely vegetable tonic that has been used for 50 years by women to help relieve the general symptoms of weakness, such as nervousness and "tired nerves." Cardui is also a mild laxative, and that should help them to overcome functional irregularity. Cardui contains no habit-forming drugs.

CARDUI is safe and wholesome for women of all ages. Try it! Sold everywhere.

Liver Sufferers Amazed At Results Obtained From Remarkable New Treatment

Thousands Reporting Sargon Soft Mass Pills Have Brought Them Lasting Relief From Constipation—Sour Stomach—Sick Headaches—Gas—Bad Breath—Coated Tongue —Nervousness and Dizzy Spells After Everything Else Had Failed.

If Your Liver Is Not Performing Its Proper Function—Sickness — Suffering and Ill Health Are the Inevitable Result.

Science Has Proved That Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, Laxative Pills, Herb Teas or Extracts Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of how they get at the cause of the trouble—the natural cleansing of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel years younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back life and color to faded eyes and cheeks, restores the appetite and sound digestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself.

Bile is nature's laxative and your stomach and liver should produce at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, gas and disease germs.

When your liver becomes sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels remain there, breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills remove the cause of this condition in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, so thorough and natural in their action there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and you remarkable of all you gradually realize the done until you no longer require a laxative of any kind.

Insist on genuine Sargon Soft Mass pills. Don't be misled. There are only a few of these organized substances which will actually stimulate a torpid liver and purify the blood and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.

Get Sargon for a full 30-day treatment. At your druggist's. Sargon Co. G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

Better Breakfasts

"A HALF - BREAKFASTED MAN," says one of Gilbert Chesterton's characters, "is no good." And he might even have included women in this statement—with all due respect to get-'em dicks.

Chilled Orange Juice
Cereal
Broiled Bacon with Fried Apple Rings
Breakfast Muffins
Blackberry Preserves Coffee

Here is a menu which will not leave one "half-breakfasted," for one reason, does need a fairly substantial meal in the morning to "get going," even if one has the habit of a "wake-up" cup of coffee—and it's a rather nice habit. But some time before the morning is well along, a breakfast that is tempting and appetizing, and also nourishing, does something for one's disposition.

Breakfast Muffins: Beat one egg and add one tablespoon sugar and one-half cup milk. Add the contents of one 8ounce can of grated lima beans pressed through a sieve. Add three-fourths cup flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add two tablespoons melted butter, pour into buttered muffin pans and bake in a 375-degree oven for about twenty-five minutes. This makes six to eight muffins. (The dry ingredients may be measured and sifted and the beans put through a sieve the night before, to save time in the morning.)"

DISPELS MYSTERY OF BANK BUSINESS

Country Banker Gives Simplified Picture of How a Bank Works to Help Other People's Business

A COUNTRY banker recently prepared the following simplified statement for his neighbors on just how a bank goes about helping them:

"It is the most important part of a bank's business to lend money. Of all the money deposited in a bank, the law requires that a certain percentage be kept on hand as a reserve to meet the demands of depositors. It is the business of its officers to lend the balance conservatively and safely.

"The loans of a properly managed bank are invariably made to those it believes are able to repay, and always on condition that they be repaid at a stipulated time.

"The promise of an individual to repay a loan to a bank on a certain date is as sacredly inviolable as the promise of a bank to repay its depositors on demand, or in the case of a certificate of deposit, on the date it falls due. When it comes to be known of an individual that he 'always pays,' his credit is established and his bank is always glad to extend him needed accommodations.

"A well managed bank never capitalizes industries. That is, it does not place its loans in fixed form, but puts them where they are to be used for temporary requirements, and where they will be taken up at the time specified.

How a Bank Lends

"It is not the function of a bank to become a partner in industries, nor could it be legitimately done with the money of depositors. Its loans must be kept in 'liquid' form,—that is, repayable in cash at stated intervals.

"A bank must use the greatest discrimination in making loans. A stranger cannot expect accommodations. It is customary for the borrower to make a statement of his financial affairs, which is kept in the bank's records. It is a punishable offense to make a false statement for the purpose of borrowing funds.

"Naturally, in their dealing with the regular depositors of the bank, its officers become well acquainted with their characters and their resources and are thus in a position to determine how large a line of credit each one is entitled to. That is one of the great advantages of being a bank depositor.

"The man who knows how to get into debt wisely, that is, who borrows money with which to make more money through legitimate enterprise, is the borrower whom the bank is looking for. By the frank interchange of opinion and a free discussion of various projects, the borrower is often guided and helped by his banker.

"In order to procure a line of credit at a bank three things are important:

"1. A statement of assets showing a basis of credit in the way of invested capital, or collateral sufficient value to cover amount of loan, or

"2. An endorser whose credit is established at the bank; and

"3. Average deposits of a sufficient amount to justify the extension of the desired accommodation."

AS WILL ROGERS SEES IT

Will Rogers recently told why the banks had got into trouble. "Don't blame it all on the bankers," he said. "When we all needed money they loaned it to us—but when they needed it we couldn't pay it back."

Advertising Aids Business Revival

NEW YORK—Aggressive concerns are expanding business by effective advertising despite depressed business conditions, declared A. W. Diller, advertising counsel, at a bankers' conference here recently.

"In 1933 a good year in which to advertise?" Mr. Diller asked. "Yes, if 1933 is a good year to stay in business, to reinforce the public's confidence in you, to put more business on the books. There is new business to be had today and aggressive companies are getting it. But new business will come in only if you go out for it. Advertising certainly goes out for it.

"Will people read newspaper advertisements these days? They will read anything that interests them. There are plenty of present-day arguments for business."

Advertising Mistakes

A QUESTION before many of us is what change of advertising policy, if any, should be made in view of present financial and business conditions. It is perfectly natural for us to give consideration to some degree of retrenchment, but it is dangerous to let reduction in expenditure be such as to bring about a real gap in the continuity of the advertising. It is a common mistake for some advertisers to think that they can turn advertising on and off, like water from a faucet, and expect it to become immediately effective whenever they are prepared to resume operations. Advertising does not work that way. Temporary conditions should not influence us to make too serious inroads on the program of advertising, which can be wisely conceived only on a long term basis.—Francis H. Sisson, President American Bankers Association.

Registrations of new Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks in the first quarter this year accounted for 37.2 per cent of the total of the industry and exceeded the combined registrations of the next three leading makes, according to a statement released today by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

What Tourists Want To Know About Us

THIS IS THE TOURIST SEASON! EVERY DAY DOZENS OF TOURISTS CARS PASS THROUGH APPOMATTOX. BY SEPTEMBER THOUSANDS OF SUCH CARS WILL HAVE COME AND GONE. MOST OF THEM HAVE ALREADY HEARD OF APPOMATTOX AND WOULD GLADLY STOP AND SEE OUR FAMOUS SHRINES. THEY WOULD LEAVE THOUSANDS OF NEEDED DOLLARS AND BECOME ADVERTISERS OF THIS TOWN. THAT IS IF WE CATERED TO THEIR INTEREST.

Here's a sample question and answer chat, prepared for us by the TIMES-VIRGINIAN. We suggest that we keep it.

1. Question: Can you tell where the Surrender Grounds are?
   Answer—On Route 306, two miles north of the town of Appomattox.
2. Question: What's out there interesting to see?
   Answer—There are dozens of interesting things, most of them marked by state historical markers. Among them are: the site of the McLean House, the old tavern, the old jail, the cemetery, the North Carolina monument, the tree under which Lee spoke his farewell address, the Appomatox river.
3. Question: What's the McLean House?
   Answer—That was the home of Wilmer McLean, where Lee and Grant met to sign the Surrender papers.
4. Question: Is it still standing?
   Answer—No. It was taken apart years ago under a plan to reassemble it in some large city for speculative purposes. But the plan fell through and the remnants decayed. But the site is properly marked and pictures are under way for it to be rebuilt according to blue print.
5. Question: Where were Grant's forces?
   Answer—To the South of the Surrender Grounds, between the depot village and the old court house.
6. Question: Where were Lee's forces?
   Answer—Lee moved up the James River from Richmond and on April 7 and 8 encamped just north of the Appomattox River.
7. Question: Was there much fighting at Appomattox?
   Answer—Only a few skirmishes, most of which are recorded on markers on the Surrender Grounds.
8. Question: What was the immediate cause of Lee's surrender?
   Answer—He hoped to reach Lynchburg and unite with other Confederate forces. But Grant got in between him and his goal at Appomattox. Lee's army was poorly equipped, consisting of only 9,000 men. Grant had a splendidly outfitted army of over 100,000. When Meade joined Grant here they virtually encircled Lee and for Lee to have risked a major and desperate last stand would have caused needless slaughter of his men.
9. Question: What about the farewell address tree?
   Answer—After the surrender Lee's men begged for a few last words. Standing under the marked tree he thanked his men for their service and urged them to become as good soldiers in peace as they had been in war. The tree still stands and may be seen.

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives his service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight.

It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.
